AUTO WRECK PROVES FATAL

Mrs. Scanlon, Killed Near Los Banos Sunday

Funeral services were held Wednesday for Mrs. Katherine J. Scanlon, who was killed Sunday morning in an automobile accident near Los Banos. Mrs. Scanlon, together with Miss Marge Haugham, was a passenger in the car with Mr. and Mrs. S. Reinhard of this city, by whom both she and Miss Haugham were employed. Near Los Banos the car turned over, crushing Mrs. Scanlon beneath it. She was killed instantly.

The other members of the party escaped without injury, and the car was not seriously damaged. After the accident, the Reinhards continued on their trip, but Miss Haugham returned to Redwood City.

Mrs. Scanlon had planned to spend the holidays with friends from San Carlos in a trip to the Yosemite valley, but at the insistance of her employers had consented to accompany them to Los Angeles.

Funeral services were held at the parlors of Layng & Tinney, thence to Mt. Carmel Catholic church, where a requiem mass was celebrated. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery, Lawndale.

Mrs. Scanlon, whose husband, William Scanlon, passed away a few months ago, had been a resident of this city for many years. She was of a cheerful, pleasing personality and has hundreds of friends who were grief stricken at her sad passing. Mrs. Scanlon was the daughter of Mrs. Mary F. Anderson of San Francisco. She was the sister of Mrs. Elmer Hurrell and of Mrs. E. C. Mathesen, both of this city, and of G Webster Anderson and the Misses Genevieve and Dorothy Anderson of San Francisco.

Following the meeting last evening of Redwood City Lodge No. 168 F. & A. M., the San Metao county scenic film was shown in the lodge banquet hall. On the evening before it was shown for the second time in the theatre at Halfmoon Bay. Roscoe Wyatt, secretary of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, has made arrangements to have the film shown in eight states during the next month.

County Booth Making Fine Prize Record

The San Mateo county booth at the state fair stands a good chance to win the sweep stakes award, according to Roscoe Wyatt, secretary of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, who has had charge of preparing the booth. So far the county exhibit has been awarded five prizes, a gold cup and one second prize.

On Sunday the display of carnations prepared by E. W. McLellan of Burlingame was awarded first prize for those flowers. On Monday a first prize for chrysanthemums was awarded to a display prepared by M. Watanabe of this city. On Tuesday a display of roses, also from the McLellan gardens, was given first place and on Wednesday a display of sweet peas grown by Mrs. E. M. Alsford and Mrs. J. Peterson in San Gregorio, took the first prize for sweet peas. A display of straw flowers grown by T. Yakahashi of Montara was given a first prize for a display during the fair.

A gold cup for the best feature booth was awarded to the San Mateo county exhibit, which depicts a large Zeppelin, built of straw flowers just emerging from the hangar, which forms the booth.

Yesterday the award was made for dahlias, today it will be made for asters and tomorrow for zinnias. Wyatt is hopeful of receiving first place in all of these classes.

Wyatt is loud in his praise of the co-operation he has received from the flower growers of this county. On Tuesday, he says, plans for sending sweet peas to the fair failed, and Tuesday night there semed no way of making a display of these flowers. Tuesday night Eric M. Alsford of San Gregorio phoned over and said that he would take the flowers to Sacramento. Leaving early in the morning Alsford rushed to Sacramento with the flowers and arrived ten minutes after the fair opened. The flowers were arranged and received first place.

Three Held For Killing of Sheep

Shooting prize sheep may be a good substitute for shooting deer, but it is likely also to prove an expensive sport. Frank Isadoro, La Honda rancher, on Wednesday swore out warrants for the arrest of three youths, all members of wealthy peninsula families, whom he charged with having killed a number of his sheep while shooting for deer on his ranch.

Isadoro states that he allowed the boys to hunt on his La Honda ranch, giving them the keys to his ranch house and gates. He and his wife, he states, then went to San Francisco for the holiday. When he returned, he charges that he found a number of his sheep killed. He swore out warrants before District Attorney Swart for the arrest of Gordon Coryell, son of J. B. Coryell of Menlo Park; Thomas Breeze, Jr., of Hillsborough; and Thomas S. Bates, Jr., of San Francisco.

Isadoro claims that after finding the shep killed he heceived a letter from the boys, stating that they were "sorry for mistreating the sheep." They enclosed a $20 bill, which they said they thought would cover the damage. Isadoro claims that each of the seven sheep killed was worth $200.

The three young men were arrested for violation of that section of the penal code which prohibits the willful killing of an animal belonging to another or cruelty to any animal. Deputies Maloney and Neri in the office of Sheriff McGrath made the arrest of the three young men. An investigation of affairs at the Isadoro farm showed that seven sheep were dead and another was missing. Bail was set at $250 for each of the three men and they are now at liberty on that amount.

TAX CUT MADE IN COUNTY

A Reduction Follows Failure To Pass Road Tax

The tax rate for San Mateo county was fixed last Monday by the county board of supervisors at $2.98 for unincorporated areas and at $2.49 for the incorporated districts. This is a cut of 18 cents under the last year's rate for the unincorporated areas and of 8 cents for the districts which are incorporated.

The rate was fixed after a stormy session in which the chief factor of dissention was the 10 cent road tax which has been levied in the past for the maintenance of the county roads. Mrs. Brown, supervisor of the Second district, led the fight on this particular tax, declaring that it was an unnecessary burden upon the people, and that the revenue from the state apportionment, together wth the general levy, should be sufficient for the road purposes. Supervisors Hickey and Thompson voted to retain the tax; Supervisors Brown and Poole, voted against it. Supervisor Francis was absent, thus making the vote even. As this was less than the necessary majority required to pass the tax measure, for the first time in the county, the road tax was not passed. This made a saving of ten cents per hundred dollars valuation on all unincorporated areas.

The inter-county bridge between the Portola road from Menlo Park and the road in the Stanford University property was made payable from the funds of the Third district. Supervisor Poole, representing this district, protested this arrangement, stating that this bridge, like other inter-county bridges, should be paid for out of the general fund, and not from the funds of one road district. In this he was seconded by Supervisor Brown. Poole's motion failed to gain a majority, the vote being two to two.

Judge Buck Withdraws Probation

An order issued last June granting probation to Miss Nettie Willits, former city clerk of San Bruno, was last Friday revoked by Judge Geo. H. Buck. Following the revokation of the order for two years probation, Miss Willits withdrew her plea of "guilty" to six counts of embezzlement, and entered a plea of "not guilty."

Miss Willits was accused of taking $2739.97 in funds belonging to the city of San Bruno. As a probationary order issued in June by Judge Buck did not require the restitution of this sum the people of San Bruno recently applied to Attorney General U. S. Webb to have the order set aside.

The action of Judge Buck in setting aside his own order was a surprise to the people of San Bruno, and will again bring the matter into court. Judge Buck yesterday set the time for trial as Monday, Sept. 23, 1929.

School Paper To Issue Weekly

Shortly after school opened it was officially announced that the Sequoia Times, local high school paper, would become a weekly. In the past the Times has been edited only once every two weeks. The announcement came as the result of a conference of high school officials, members of the editorial staff of the paper in question, and their adviser, Miss Eunice Schmidt.

Miss Schmidt stated that it was chiefly because the Sequoia Times wished to be of greater service to the school that the change was made. Members of the staff feel that in addition to this, their paper will stand a better chance of placing first in the annual contests held for school papers, both here and in the East.

Sanford Feldman, commissioner of publications and editor-in-chief of the Times, stated: "To take care of the increased subscriptions, which came as a result of the change from a bi-weekly to a weekly, we have purchased an addressing machine and the journalism department has been greatly enlarged."

The staff feels that they will be able to present a "newsier" paper in the future than they have before.

Mrs. Fred Walker and little daughter are visiting here this week. They were accompanied from their present home in Corcoran by Mr. Walker, who spent the week end here and then returned to his position in the bank at Corcoran.

Pastor Chosen By Local Church

The board of trustees of the First Congregational church met Wednesday evening for the purpose of selecting a pastor for the church. The choice of the board fell upon Rev. C. H. Stevens of Palo Alto, formerly pastor of the church here.

Rev. Stevens was pastor of the local church here for about 12 years, later going to a charge at Lodi. During his pastorate here he made himself extremely popular, and the news of his selection to again occupy the local church pulpit was welcomed by his former congregation.

Exchange Club Hears Talk On China Affairs

The present situation in China and Russia was discussed before the Redwood City Exchange Club Tuesday evenng by Bates Booth, a recent addition to the faculty of the Sequoia Union High School. Booth, who has spent considerable time in China, and who has made an extensive study of the present Russo-Chinese situation, blamed the present crisis upon the determination of the Russian Soviet to spread red propaganda in China, and to use the Rusisan railroad through China as a headquarters from which to distribute their propaganda.

The chairman of the meeting was Al Davies. Fred Duffy, member of the San Bernardino Exchange Club, and third vice-president of the Affiliated Exchange Clubs of California was present as a visitor at the local club.

Philatelic Club Starts New Year

The Sequoia Philatelic Society held its first meeting of the year on Tuesday evening at the Sequoia high school. The club has secured the use of Room 31 which is known as the "Little Theatre," for its place of meeting. This will help materially in the conducting of its activities as it has a stage and a curtain can be set up very easily for the projection of stamps, pictures, and other illustrative material which will be used this year.

This club which is interested in intelligent collection and study of postage stamps laid plans for a series of meetings which ought to attract not only those who have an acquaintance with this hobby but the unitiated, as well. E. M. Rowland, the leader of this club, has agreed to bring some of his interesting pictures and tell of his experiences in the orient. Correspondence with boys, girls and adults in various countries will be continued and the replies will be read as a part of the club program. World interest, world brotherhood, etc., will have a prominent place in all of the programs. World travelers will be asked to come in and tell of their experiences.

Roy A. Hohberger, the local Young Men's Christian Association Community Secretary, will make the contacts for the club members in their correspondence.

The club has been divided into two sides for a membership drive, which will begin in the very near future.

Police Game Ends in Tie

The baseball game between the Maloney and Bennett teams of the San Francisco police department, which was played Sunday on the Sequoia Union High School diamond ended in a draw with a score of 24-24. Although the long-standing feud between the Maloneys and the Bennetts remains unsettled, both teams with their numerous followers and families enjoyed a game replete with thrills and excitement. A new element of speed was introduced into the game by supplying a bicycle on which batters might hurry to first base.

Following the game the whole party enjoyed a dinner and talked over plans for another game in the near future when the tie will be played off.

What Makes A Good Business Town

EDITORIAL

There is not a man or woman in Redwood City who does not appreciate the importance of Redwood City being a good business town. Local business conditions serve as our best barometer of local prosperity. Certainly we all desire to be prosperous. To achieve this prosperity it is essential that our neighbors prosper likewise. Practically every person in Redwood City is dependent on the other citizens of this community for his individual prosperity. Therefore any movement toward a greater prosperity must be a group movement—a co-operative movement. Our merchants should co-operate in an endeavor to give ever better values and better service, and our fellow citizens should reciprocate with their full support. As a business in Redwood City prospers, so does the entire community prosper, for what is good for business is good for the community. Therefore it must be the aim of every resident to see that Redwood City not only achieves the reputation of being a good business town, but that it maintains this reputation.

The twelve essential points are the fundamental factors that determine the status of Redwood City as a busines town. Too great an emphasis cannot be placed upon point number one—"The citizens spend their money at home." Unless our citizens do spend their money at home, they are handicapping the possibility of Redwood City strengthening its position as a business town.

A study of community development emphasizes the fact that a good business town is not created by accident, but rather by a carefully planned program supported by the residents of the community. The Community Development Campaign discusses the question of What Makes A Good Business Town in this issue of the Times-Gazette, and presents in a clear and concise form the essential factors. After you have read what is there written, you can judge for yourself where Redwood City stands in this respect.

Two Arrested For Abandoning Child In Oakland

Redwood City police Monday night arrested Mildred Winters, 20-year-old Chico stenographer, and Edward Pacheco, 22, at a local hotel on a charge of child abandonment, as the result of the finding in Oakland Monday of a baby girl on the lawn of an Oakland home suffering from a heavy dose of ether.

When arrested, the girl admitted the abandonment of the child, to whom she had given birth some weeks before at a Salvation Army home. She said that the ether was not given with the intention of killing the child, but to keep it quite unti she could get away. Pacheco admitted the parentage of the child, but claimed to know nothing of the abandonment. He said he wanted to marry the girl and thought that she had left the baby at the home of a friend. He had begun working that day as assistant cook in a hotel here.

BAYSHORE BRIDGE SITE HEARING

Tannery In Protest Over Location As Proposed

OTHERS IN FAVOR

Matter Submitted To War Department For Ruling

At a hearing conducted here Tuesday by the United States War Department into the proposed construction of a bridge by the State of California across Redwood Creek a short distance below the site of the present Bradford street bridge, only one protest was filed against the plans of the state. The bridge is designed to carry the proposed Bayshore highway, which is at present constructed and in use as far as San Mateo.

The only protest filed was that of Attorney Hall C. Ross, representing the S. H. Frank Tanning Company. The tanning concern stated that the construction of a bridge at the point proposed, just north of the northern end of Main street, would work a hardship on the company, which, they stated, maintains a dock and warehouse at a point higher up the creek than the site of the proposed bridge. Ross, as representative of the Frank interests, offered two alternative suggestions: the construction of a draw bridge at the proposed point, or the construction of the proposed fixed bridge farther south at about the location of the Bradford street bridge.

Col. Skaggs, district engineer of the state highway commission, answered for the commission. A draw-bridge would be a greatly added expense, he stated, and would be seldom used. He asked how many times the Bradford street draw bridge had been used, and was told by City Engineer Dimmitt that it had not been used for at least twelve years.

The re-routing of the road would also entail considerable expense, Skaggs stated, as rights of way have already been secured. It would also make necessary the placing of two curves in the road, whereas the present plans have almost eliminated curves.

Aside from the protest of the tanning company the plans were heartily endorsed by all officials and interested property owners present. Philip Aubyn, representing the Belle Haven Corporation, spoke strongly in favor of the plans, and stated that the present plans for the municipal harbor will care for all the need of water frontage. In this Col. Skaggs concurred.

A resolution approving the plans was presented by Major E. H. Ropes, who conducted the hearing for the war department, by City Manager E. A. Rolison and Mayor Beeger. A resolution by the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce was presented by E. B. Hinman, secretary-manager of that organization.

The report of the hearing will be forwarded to the war department by Major Ropes, and the decision on the matter will be made by that body.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thiel spent the week end visiting the state fair at Sacramento.

Miss Eunice Schmidt, a member of the Sequoia Union High School faculty, spent the holidays at her home in Pittsburgh.

The Misses Sophie and Hattie Nobs are guests at the O. M. Carrington home on Whipple avenue. The young ladies have just returned from a trip of several months' duration in Europe. They will visit here until the opening of school in Orange and Los Angeles, where they are respectively employed.

Members of the San Leandro Post of the American Legion are to have a 50-acre duck preserve near Brentwood at their disposal, according to Post Commander Douglas McCormack. The property was purchased recently by the Legion post, and a clubhouse is soon to be erected on it. Other East Bay posts may be invited to participate in the project McCormack said.

General Petroleum, which sought to test out a vast acreage near Delano for oil reserves, has temporarily left the potential field because land owners have looked with disapproval on the plan of testing for hidden anticlines by blasting. Under the new Kern county ordinance, permission of land owners must be secured for a given radius, and this not being forthcoming, the company has deemed it wise at this time to drill for oil without the blast experiments.

Seventeen mining claims in the Silver Lake mining district were filed in the office of County Recorder Thomas M. Ryan recenty by Warren Barney, Auzrey A. Barney, Vester E. Barney, Alfred Barney, Altie M. Van Sickle and Harry Van Sickle. The claims are all in the territory between the lake and the Mokelumne river and contain approximately 150 acres.

Members of the board of school trustees of Alvarado announced that approximately $3000 worth of improvements would be made at the grammar school. The work will include high steel and wire fences, new sewing machines for the domestic science class, playground equipment and improvements, instruments for the school orchestra, according to report.

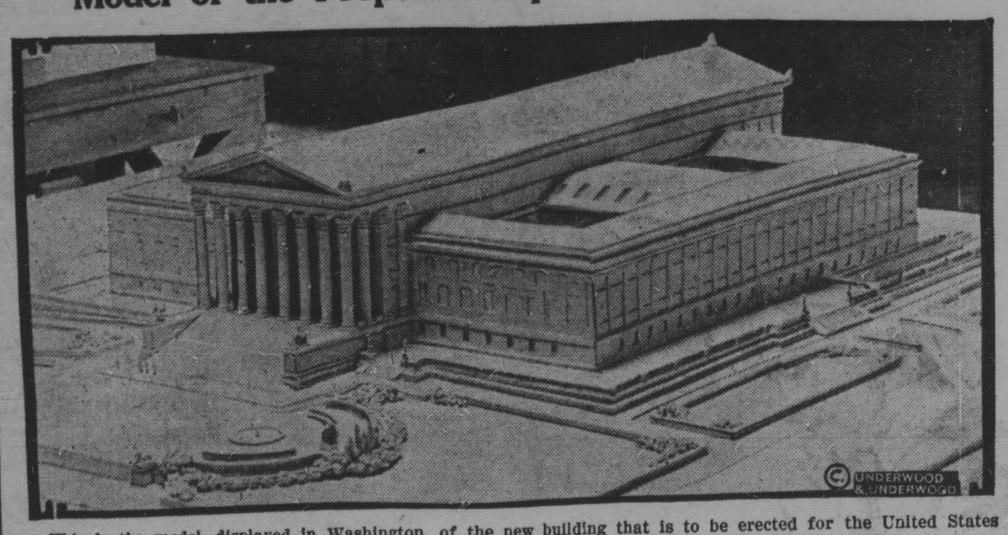

Shorter hours of labor and a nationwide road building program to give work to the jobless are advocated by the Pacific State Conference on Unemployment as a result of its recent meeting at Sacramento under the sponsorship of James Eads How, so-called "millionaire hobo." The organization passed a resolution urging that Congress appropriate $3,000,000,000 to launch highway projects which would assure employment for men out of work throughout the country. It also argued that the problems of crime would be reduced through a shorter working day, giving work to more people.

Reflecting a healthy building boom in most sections of the state, Charles A. Whitmore, newly named state building and loan commissioner, announced that twenty-four new building and loan associations have been formed in the last year. Assets of the state's building and loan associations jumped more than $100,000,000 during the year, Whitmore said, now standing at approximately $500,000,000. Headquarters of Whitmore's department will remain in San Francisco he said, but he will spend two-thirds of his time in southern California.

Public school property in Butte county is worth more than $2,500,000 according to J. E. Partridge, county superintendent of schools. High schools are the most valuable, five institutions being listed at $1,282,000. The fifty-five elementary schools are valued at $1,230,000, and kindergarten building and equipment at $5300.

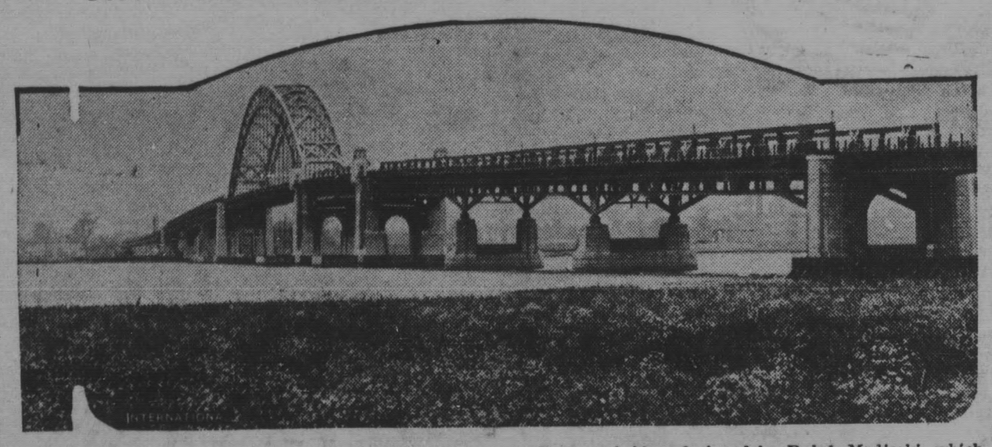

The Fresno District Fair will receive $5085 as its share of $30,000 premium money to be given district fairs this year by the state of California. The local exposition will be held September 24-29.

The span is the second link between New Jersey and Philadelphia, and has a direct connection with the great Lincoln highway.

Great Paddling Feat by Ten Society Girls

These ten society debs from Camp Toyon on Catalina Island were photographed just before they had completed the extraordinary feat of paddling their war canoe across the treacherous waters of Catalina channel. Losing their way in darkness and getting two miles off their course, they required 5 hours and 45 minutes to make the 26 miles to the mainland at Los Angeles harbor.

POULTRY

CULLING METHODS QUITE IMPORTANT

Much Money Lost Each Year by Unskilled Manner.

All the good methods in building a profitable poultry flock may be followed but if culling is not practiced, the results are disappointing.

"Culling is one of the most discussed phases of poultry work," says C. F. Parrish, poultry extension specialist at the North Carolina State college. "There is a great deal of money lost each year on unskilled and ill-timed culling. Most poultrymen are elastic in their culling practices, leaving weaklings, short and round backed birds, deformed or undersized chicks with the hope that these may develop into profitable birds. This is bad. Such birds are always costly. Culling must start with the baby chicks and space may be saved and disease eliminated if the baby chicks are rigidly culled."

This culling needs to be followed on through the growing stage and when the pullets are transferred to the laying house in the fall, the good poultryman will pull out the weaklings that may have been overlooked earlier. If egg production drops suddenly, it may be a case of poor feed or disease but when birds have gone eight months and have not laid, it means that they are from low-producing stock and should be disposed of.

The laying flock should be culled at least once each month, says Mr. Parrish. Then when egg prices drop in the spring, another rigid culling should take place with only the best hens in the flock kept in the laying house. The virtue of this plan is that the hens are marketed as they become culls and no birds are kept that are not paying their way in egg production. In such cases, also, the hens are not all dumped on the market when prices may be low.

To cull properly, Mr. Parrish suggests giving attention to the comb, health, eyes, molt, pelvic bones, flexibility of the abdomen, shank and beak, vent color and weight.

Rape Sometimes Used as Green Poultry Feed

Rape is sometimes used as green feed for poultry and the field will probably be all right as a goose pasture. In the fence corners and possibly throughout the field, there will be more or less other green plants and pasture grasses which will serve to vary the ration.

Some poultrymen have cut rape and used it for green feed for penned flocks on limited ranges. They plant it in drills and do not cut below the crown so the green feed can be harvested several times during the summer.

Geese will thrive on almost any kind of pasture grass that a cow will eat and will eat almost any grass or vegetable or growing plant that chickens will eat. Most goose breeders do not use rape for pasture, however, but keep the geese on clover pasture land or on low grassy areas not used for crops.

Profitable to Market Cockerels as Broilers

Those who have been advocating putting the cockerels off as broilers rather than keeping them longer in order to get more weight on them will be interested in the findings of the New Hampshire Agricultural college. After numerous experiments, they have satisfied themselves that it takes but seven to eight pounds of feed to produce a broiler weighing two pounds, while it takes anywhere from 12 to 20 pounds of feed for each succeeding pound up to six pounds. It is self-evident then that it does not pay market poultry men to hold their cockerels to get the six pounds in weight.

The poultry editor has always been advising you to get rid of your cockerels long before they eat their heads off, so to speak.

Gains for Chicks

Chicks make the cheapest and most rapid gains when they are young. It is therefore essential that an ample amount of good wholesome food be kept constantly before the birds. Mash hoppers should be of sufficient size so that a large majority of the chicks can eat at the same time, thereby avoiding the constant fighting and crowding for room to eat. The outdoor mash hopper of adequate size is very desirable for developing the young stock. All feeding utensils should be kept clean.

Grasshopper Control

Turkeys are a great aid in keeping grasshoppers under control. They require little feed and little investment in the way of buildings. Their need of a wide, free range makes it somewhat difficult to grow them in thickly settled countries. Grown turkeys are extremely hardy, but young poults need considerable care. A little water on the feathers, cold feet, a bit of spoiled food, or even one louse, will kill them at this stage. Poults should be watched until well feathered.

Roup Contagious

Roup is very contagious. In the fall it often attacks entire flocks, especially in poorly ventilated houses. A light form of roup can usually be cured by giving better ventilation. In addition to correcting the ventilation, put enough permanganate of potash in the drinking water to turn the water a deep pink.

The more severe type of roup is very hard to cure. Isolate a sick hen immediately and thus prevent a spread of the disease.

What Makes a Good Business Town?

A good business town is created by the complete co-operation of every citizen in supporting the local business, professional and industrial institutions and in furthering the development of all community activities.

Whatever is good for business is also good for the community, for as business profits so the community prospers. It is, therefore, of interest to all of us that ours should be a good business town.

In judging the progress we are making as a business town let us see if we fulfill the following standards:

1. The citizens spend their money at home.
2. The number of business institutions is increasing.
3. There is an active general commercial organization such as a Chamber of Commerce with a high percentage of eligible concerns as members.
4. Business rentals are as low as in competing towns and the premises well kept.
5. The amount of bank deposits and savings deposits increase faster than population growth, and banking interests provide for local borrowers first.
6. A higher than normal increase in population.
7. An increasing railroad business, postal receipts, building construction and real estate transfers.
8. An increasing amount of insurance issued and held.
9. An honest civic administration and fair taxes.
10. Good streets and highways; utility services.
11. Efficient Fire and Police protection.
12. A church-going community—honest and thrifty.

Do we meet the standards in this community? In order to be judged a good business town we must.

Folks, it's good business for all of us to strive to make a Good Business Town of

Safety at Sea

THE disaster of the San Juan off the coast of Santa Cruz county serves to emphasize the advance which has been made in safety devices within the past quarter of a century. Built about thirty-two years ago, the San Juan was one of the finest ships in the coast trade in her day. Yet, when rammed by the prow of another ship, she sank in what is estimated at the most as four minutes.

The San Juan, built of iron, was helpless to resist the crushing from the bow of the other vessel. Had she been built of steel as ships are today the collision would have resulted in a bad rip, but hardly in the complete sinking of the ship, as water tight compartments would have kept her afloat for a matter of hours at least.

Safety is the greatest achievment of modern inventions whether it be on the water, in the air or on land. Speed, comfort, new methods of travel, have all contributed to make the past twenty-five years notable, but the built-in factor of safety which is more and more becoming a part of every form of travel, will in years to come be considered as the present era's greatest contribution to posterity.

Welcome News

NO news is more welcomed the world around than a report that taxes are coming down. San Mateo County's taxes this year will be the lowest in years. The general rate for the county has been fixed by the board of supervisors for the ensuing year at $2.89, a reduction of 18 cents on the hundred dollar valuation from the rate fixed by the board last year.

A low tax rate is always an advantage to a district, and the supervisors whose efforts were responsible for the elimination of unnecessary expenses, and for the reduction of the tax rate are to be commended for their action.

Illiteracy

"The appaling amount of illiteracy in the United States is a challenge to every city and state, and to the Federal Government," declares an editorial in the Washington Herald.

"Only by more schools and better schools, by more teachers and better teachers, and by the best compensation for teachers, can the nation give to every child that education to which it is entitled and which it must have to assume the obligations of citizenship.

"A Federal Department of Education is needed, and badly needed, to co-ordinate education throughout the country. It is strange that education which next to defense is the nation's most vital business, is not even represented in the Cabinet of the Chief Magistrate of the United States.

"Such a department would rescue hundreds of thousands of children and grownups who are now adrift on the sea of ignorance.

"Let the nation 'throw out the lifeline' to these unfortunates."

The Great Safety Movement

THE Annual Safety Congress is to be held in Chicago from September 30 to October 4. With an expected attendance of 7,000, it will be the greatest world gathering ever formed in the interest of accident prevention and conservation of life.

Three hundred and fifty-four safety authorities will address those present, and a total of 125 sessions, a condensed university course in public, home and industrial safety, will be held. The past, present and future of the subject will be discussed in all its phases to prepare for intensive work during the coming year.

The importance of this Congress, and the work it signifies, cannot be over-estimated. If the United States has a crying need today, it is for safety knowledge and a safety consciousness on the part of the public. The terrible toll of accidents in the home and in industry, and because of automobiles, must be lessened.

Many of the best minds today are working toward an ideal of safety.

Carelessness, incompetence, ignorance—in these three words is contained the whole problem of safety. There are few unavoidable accidents. Practically every sudden death means that someone has failed in his duty, or has proven himself unfit, or has lacked necessary precautionary knowledge. It is a commendable endeavor to direct the public toward sound ideas of safety, and the least the public can do is to follow, for purely selfish personal reasons, if none other.

Studying the Bread Basket

PLANS to reduce the cost of living are easy to discuss but as Mark Twain said regarding talk about the weather, "We do nothing about it."

The Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, comprising 230 leading manufacturers of grocery products, intend to do more than talk. They have embarked upon a world-wide investigation looking toward the reduction of distribution costs in their industry for the direct purpose of benefiting the consumer. Both President Hoover and Secretary of Commerce Lamont have voiced the unqualified opinion that reduced distribution costs were essential to continued expansion of American business.

H. R. Drackett, president of the Associated Grocery Manufacturers, points out that other nations are striving to attain a standard of living equal to that in America. A low price creates a larger volume of sales. If unnecessary distribution costs cause high prices in foreign as well as local markets, a reduction in these costs would result in lower prices to consumers and mean more consumers of American products.

The grocers are embarking upon a worthwhile movement which is in line with the modern tendency of mass production with a maximum turn-over at a minimum profit.

An Example in Peace

THERE is a a bit of irony in the Russo-Chinese situation growing out of the seizure of the Far Eastern railway. It now appears that the dispute, which statesmen throughout the world feared would bring on war, will now be amicably settled.

The United States and other nations do not recognize Soviet Russia as a nation; the world looks on China as a conglomeration of warring factions due to the almost constant civil war in recent years.

And yet these two nations, looked down upon by the so-called civilized world, appear to be settling their dispute, according to the highest standards of civilization. The dispute is one that has threatened trouble for the last 25 years and was a factor in the Russo-Japanese war. Possibly it is just as well that the recent crisis did not involve two "orthodox" nations.—San Mateo Times.

J. C. PENNEY CO. HAS STATE FAIR EXHIBIT

$4,000,000.00 Spent By Company In State

The J. C. Penney Company's exhibit at the Calfornia State Fair, held at Sacramento from August 31st to September 9th, brings out the fact that this organization spent $4,380,918 in California last year, thus contributing materially to the prosperity of the state, according to C. A. Nelson, manager of the local store.

The J. C. Penney Company's booth presents an educational display depicting the company's activities in this state. This year the exhibit features the fact that the company purchased merchandise from California manufacturers in 1928, to the amount of $1,687,241.

Maps and charts carry the itemized list of all expenditures within the state last year:

Rent and building upkeep	$ 396,127
Advertising and donations	220,643
Salaries paid employees	1,378,667
Mdse. purchased in Calif.	1,687,241
Other expenditures	698,240
Total expenditures	$4,380,918

A chart of the company's civic interests in this state reveals that of 75 stores in operation in California in 1928, 156 managers and associates own their homes and 196 memberships are held in local chambers of commerce and commercial clubs, showing that the company's representatves are actively interested in civic development.

The opening of new stores in this state brings the number of J. C. Penney Co. stores in California up to 118 this year.

"We have more stores in California than in any other state," said Mr. C. A. Nelson. "Our organization finds that the agricultural progress of this state and the forward looking attitude of its citizens make California ideal for the success of the J. C. Penney Co. stores."

The J. C. Penney Company's booth is attractively decorated in yellow and black, the company colors. Large posters in attractive colors portray the original store at Kemmerer, Wyo., and visualize a typical company store linking city and country, with the legend, "Styles, values, service brought to your community."

An electric map of the state flashes the store towns in California, including Redwood City, and a large map of the United States gives the number of stores in each state. The dsplay also includes a miniature modle of a J. C. Penney Co. store.

Souvenirs are distributed from the booth.

Commenting on the booth, Mr. Nelson said:

"We believe the fact that our company purchases so much merchandise in California, will be of particular interest to visitors at the fair. By patronizing these state industries, we are helping to keep thousands of California workers employed and are contributing to the general prosperity of the state. These products are given a nationwide market, being distributed from coast to coast through the 1400 J. C. Penney Co. stores.

"Visiting the state fair is one of the best ways of getting acquainted with the products and industries of our state. Every visitor at the fair will come away wish fresh information about the best developments in every field—agriculturial, industrial and the home."

Mrs. J. W. Lowe and daughter left last week for Placerville, where they expect to remain for two weeks.

Mrs. Alex Peers of Mayfield is spending a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. William Hughes. Mrs. Peers will probably remain here until her husband returns from Europe in October.

Mrs. E. Mourot and Miss Louise mourot returned last Friday from their trip to St. Louis and other eastern points of interest. They were absent on their travels for about two months.

W. H. Kinne of Willits, Mendocino county, was in Redwood City Monday greeting old friends. Mr. Kinne likes to be around whenever there is any indication of bubbles on the political pot.

Miss Linda Mullen and Miss Olga Heiner returned Monday from Monte Rio, where they have been spending their vacation of some weeks. The outing certainly agreed with the young ladies, for they both look exseedingly well and handsome.

The Native Sons' dance will take place in the Alhambra next Thursday evening. From present indications there will be a large attendance. Good music has been engaged, and those who come will have the best time they have ever had in their lives.

Edward Sampson and his wife and two sons left Wednesday on an extended trip through the eastern states. They will go from here direct to St. Louis. After visiting the Exposition they will go to Massachusetts. Returning they will spend a few weeks at Mr. Sampson's former home in Minnesota, after which they will go to southern Kansas to spend the remainder of their vacation.

Miss Myrtle Rossiter will leave in a few days for Whittier, where she will have charge of the English department in the high school, which opens on September 15th. Miss Myrtle graduated from Stanford last June and this is her first school. She will be much missed by her many friends here.

Rev. Mr. Spoolman, who is pursuing a course of theological studies at the Pacific Seminary at Berkeley, visited Redwood friends Sunday. Mr. Spoolman will be remembered as having filled the pulpit of the Congregational church between Mr. Marr's ministry and that of Mr. Kirtland.

bulation quotes on this ert W. Swayne of Chica- nt of the Chicago Real rd, pioneer co-operative developer, and a director ation:

ore Columbus raised the Spanish flag on San Salvadore, the Indians lived in co-operative apartments, probably for protection and possibly to keep from being lonesome.

"Today people are again living in co-operative apartments for reasons of economy and convenience, and in some cases, because their servants don't likes houses.

"Towering co-operative apartment structures rise in opulence along Park avenue in New York and dot the lake shore drives in Chicago. Great tenant-owned buildings can be seen on the stately streets of Washington, D. C. and a "co-operative apartment skyscrapper" has just been completed in San Francisco.

White Collar Ones Too

"In all these cities there are also modest and inexpensive co-operatives; and suburban co-operatives have flourished on the outskirts of Philadelphia, New York, Washington, and Chicago, and in such small towns as Madison, Wis., where the demand for space alone could not have persuaded people to this mode of living.

"Five hundred million dollars is invested in co-operative apartment buildings in New York and Chicago alone. Three hundred thousand dollars was recently paid for a twenty room co-operative at 855 Fifth Avenue in New York and nominal down payments can begin the purchase of more modest quarters in both cities, with the balance figured at no more than rent.

"Co-operative apartment owners include such people as Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., who was chairman of the U. S. Reparations Committee abroad; Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state; Stanley Field, the great merchant prince of Chicago; and Dwight Morrow, former vice-president of J. P. Morgan & Co., now Ambassador to Mexico.

"Co-operative apartment owners also include business women, traveling salesmen, clerks, school teachers, widows and policemen.

"Such people have found it advantageous to live in this way for a variety of reasons, with convenience and economy the leading ones.

Buyers Want More Than Renters

"Well organized co-operative apartment projects provide better homes at the same price, and sometimes at a lower price, than their buyers would have to pay for the same quarters in rent. The operator or builder planning to launch a co-operative enterprise secures the very best location available. He does this because he knows that he must sell his apartments to people who sign up with a more discerning eye than if they were renting. Similarly he constructs his buildings with the thought in mind that its occupants will be permanent guests who want better materials, equipment, and finish, as buyers, than they might accept as renters.

—"The plan of co-operative apartment ownership, by turning the management of the building over to the owners, dispenses with the cost of a manager, a sum figured in the rental of a rental structure. Some co-operative corporations have found it advisable to retain their organizers as managers, but the fees of these firms are usually lower than the full time salary of a resident manager.

"Decorating expenses, figured in rental buildings annually on each apartment, are saved in the co-operative corporations. The apartment owners do not move once a year, and thus do not require the annual redecorating. If they want it they pay for it themselves as they would in a home. The expense of advertisng to keep the building filled is saved in the co-operative.

"It is because of the savings described above that co-operatives can be maintained at much lower costs than rental buildings. In the case of a low priced apartments, bought over a period of time in installment payments, many structures in the cities described can be purchased and maintained at a cost that does not exceed their rental values. In either instance, whether the apartment is paid for outright or little by little, the funds invested are likely to increase in value. This is due chiefly to the fact that the sites on which they are erected are usually choice ones and have a good normal appraciation.

Profits on Resales

"There are verified cases on record where co-operative apartments in a building occupied by moderate salaried people such as university professors, salesmen, and dentists were resold by their owners at good profits less than a year and a half after the original investments were made.

"The convenience factor that has caused so many people to undertake this form of home ownership includes convenience from the point of view of location and convenience from the point of view of upkeep.

"It is almost impossible for families of moderate income to own their homes in the down-town sections in our large cities; yet many people, for a variety of reasons prefer to live in these locations .They could not possibly afford to buy the land on such streets as Park avenue in New York, for instance, but they can afford to purchase a co-operative apartment in conjunction with other people who also desire the advantages of city life. Such people do not like the idea of renting year after year. They want a home and they want it in the heart of the city. The co-operative apartment is the answer.

"But even some of the very wealthy can no longer afford to keep up their large town houses. Rapid increases in realty values on streets like Park avenue in New York and Lake Shore Drive in Chicago have made it more economical for millionaires to move into twenty, thirty or forty-room co-operatives. Tempting offers of thousands of dollars for the sites of old homesteads have caused their owners to sell out, to the corporations that want to build skyscrapers.

"Moreover, in buildings sold out before the construction is completed, buyers of co-operative apartments can design and build their apartment homes in exactly the same manner as they would if they constructed a home in the suburbs. They can dictate the size and shape of the rooms, the finish, the colors on the walls, the interior features.

Easier to Keep Up

"The servant problem too in the households of the wealthy has had much to do with the development of expensive co-operatives. For the servant problem has been more than the idle talk of women over their teacups. Servants actually are hard to get, and much more difficult to manage than in former days. A co-operative apartment, however large, does not requre as many servants as a house.

"On this same principle rests the success of many small and inexpensive co-operatives. A servantless apartment is less work than a servantless house, a feature that appeals alke to the woman with children and the women whose children have grown and left home. This is one of the reasons for the popularity of the co-operatives in surburban places where the land values are not such a factor.

"Co-operative apartments are transferable. They can be resold, rented, and inherited. Most corporations provide that new owners or tenants be approved by the building board of directors; but this a precaution that every owner who is not selling or renting is thankful to have taken. It insures the character of the building residents, which is essential to the success of a co-operative enterprise and is a thing that the careful operator keeps in mind in selling his building originally."

Examine Legal Forms

But Mr. Swayne warns prospective buyers of co-operative apartments to investigate thoroughly before handing over their money. He points out the importance of using the right legal forms in the organization of a sound co-operative. These forms that include the perpetual lease, the stock certificate, by-laws, and other papers, constitute the ownership under our laws. It is through these papers that it is possible to sell parts of a building to a number of people. There is nothing complicated or indefinite about these forms, if properly drawn, but just as flaws in titles have jeopardized the titles to houses, so flaws in the co-operative legal forms could jeopardize the equity in a co-operative.

The legal forms now used by many of the co-operative apartment operators in this country and by many operators in other parts of the world, were prepared by a group of Chicago co-operative experts, including Mr. Swayne. These standard forms that have been approved by a commttee of leading attorneys from all parts of the U. S. represent an investment of more than $100,000 on the part of the operators who expended at least this sum in their time and money to insure the soundness of their projects.

National Bureau Aids Movement

In order to get men entering this business to use these legal forms and to further raise the standards of co-operative structures erected in the future, the National Association of Real Estate Boards last year set up in its Co-operative Apartment Division a Consultation Bureau on co-operatives, particularly as an aid to new operators. This bureau composed of committees of neutral architects, attorneys, bankers, and builders, for a nominal fee, will examine the proposed plans for a co-operative enterprise and award it a certificate of approval if all the details meet with the bureau's standards. The bureau examines the building location, and its design, the legal forms on which the corporation is organized, the financing plans, the proposed budget for the building, and the advertising literature. The bureau has established certain high standards covering these phases of co-operative apartment organization; if a project submitted to it does not meet these standards, the bureau experts (who serve in a volunteer capacity) point out the changes that will make the project sound.

Immediately upon the establishment of this bureau, several veteran operators, including Mr. Swayne, presented their current projects for examination in order to encourage the same action on the part of men just entering this business.

To Save Beaches For the Public

(Capital News Bureau Service)

SACRAMEN O, Sept. 5—Designed to save Ca ifornia's beaches for the people and prevent their exploitation by private interests, the new Save-the-Beaches Act, adopted by the 1929 Legislature, became effective September 1, it was announced by Surveyor General W. S. Kingsbury.

Under the measure, no application for a permit to drill or prospect for oil on state tide or submerged lands shall be received, nor any permit issued. The act also applies to tidelands which may have been deeded to cities and counties by the state.

An emergency act has been enforced since January 1 to halt oil pollution of beach lands, pending effectiveness of the general law.

While the law is not retroactive, Surveyor General Kingsbury said that only a few permits for drilling on state lands are outstanding.

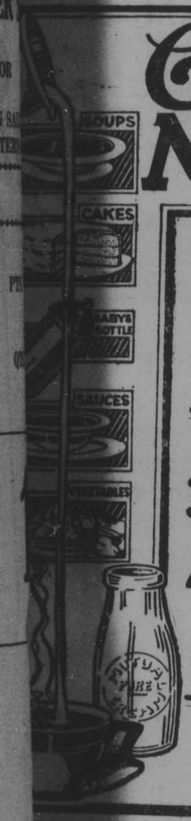

"This is one of the wisest pieces of legislation adopted by the 1929 Legislature," said Kingsbury. "It gives a legal standing to the principle that California's beautiful beaches are the property of all the people, rather than the few."

ALLOTMENT OF COUNTY ROAD FUND ANNOUNCED

County's Share Will Be $2491.04 For Half Year

New Truck Licenses Help Swell Funds

By CLEM WHITAKER
(Capital News Bureau Service)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4—San Mateo County, profiting by generally improved business conditions and a consequent increase in tax returns, today received two apportionments from the state's bulging money bags, one in the sum of $1,942.99, and a second totaling $548.05.

The allotments will go to swell the county's road fund, according to State Controller Ray L. Riley, who announced a combined apportionment to the counties of $221,292.62.

Of the state-wide allocation, said the controller, $171,230.23 represented the counties' share in the new motor bus and truck tax returns for the first six months of 1929. The new tax is a levy of 4 per cent on the gross receipts of all motor bus concerns and 5 per cent on all truck lines either under franchise, or operating between fixed terminals.

The smaller apportonment, aggregating $50,062.39 for the state at large, consists, Riley announced, of belated payments under the old transportation license tax, which was discarded to make way for the new levy.

"Collections under our new truck and motor bus tax," said Controller Riley, "are not alone indicative of good business conditions, at least in this branch. They are also significant as evidence of the rapidly increasing popularity of highway freight service and highway passenger carriers.

"Under the new tax, too, the state is enabled to collect from so-called contract haulers, who very frequently dodged the old gross receipts levy. The "contract hauler," under the new set-up, does not pay a gross receipts' tax, but comes under the motor vehicle weight tax, which he must pay when he licenses his truck.

The county apportionment for each county in the state went into the mail today.

State Has No Pity For Crooked Broker

(By Capitol News Bureau Service)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5—Biblical justice may have guaranteed forgiveness even unto "seven times seven," but the state law governing stock brokers is less charitable.

In a decision, rendered to State Corporation Commissioner Fred G. Athearn, Attorney General Webb ruled today that once a broker has violated the law and been convicted thereof he shall never again be relicensed in California.

Financial stability of the offender, or repentance, are of no avail in securing such an offender legal forgiveness, he held.

Indians May Be Denied Aid From New Pension Act

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5—Are California Indians entitled to aid under the new state-county old age pension system?

Legal ruling on that question today was asked of Attorney General Webb by the State Department of Social Welfare, following discovery of a fluke in the new legislation which apparently makes aged Indians ineligible for assistance.

Under the act, it was pointed out, an applicant must have been a citizen of the United States for at least 15 years to qualify for a pension. The Indians, investigation disclosed, have only been citizens for 9 years, having been granted the status of citizens in 1920. Prior to that time they were classed as wards of the government.

In some other states, where old age pensions are in effect, the citizenship clause has been waived so far as Indians are concerned but it is not known whether this can be done legally in California.

Plan Commission Must Be Formed States U. S. Webb

(By Capitol News Bureau Service)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5—San Mateo county, under a decision rendered today by Attorney General Webb, must have a county planning commission to map out the manner in which the county shall grow.

The county planning commission act, said Webb, is not optional, but mandatory on every county in the state.

Webb held that it is prescribed in the general laws of the state that county governments must be uniform in their make-up and that this precludes any option in the matter.

The planning act was designed, its authors claimed during the Legislature, to prevent cities and counties from growing up, Topsy-like, without a plan or system.

Footprints Lead To Jail For Him

(By Capitol News Bureau Service)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4—The importance of "footprints on the sands of crime" as a means of running down offenders, first predicted by the State Bureau of Criminal Identification several months ago, came in today for practical demonstration.

Joseph Priditali, wealthy Italian rancher of Jackson, Amador county, was traced, by his footprints, from the scene of an incendiary fire, State Forester M. B. Pratt announced, and finally confessed that he had set nine fires on his own property without a permit.

Priditali, who entered a plea of guilty in court, has not yet been sentenced. He was tracked by hangers, using photographs of the prints left by an unusual pair of shoes which he wore.

A GOOD ICE BOX GIVES A TEMPERATURE OF LESS THAN 50°*

and SOMETHING MORE

Like a FERRIS WHEEL

Your ice box makes no noise but there's endless motion in it just the same—

—The air in your ice box moves round and round like a Ferris wheel. It passes over the ice where it is washed and freshened—then over the foods, taking odors and impurities away—then back to the ice to drop its burden and to be washed and chilled again.

Only an ICE box gives—in addition to amply low temperature—that constant circulation of clean washed air that keeps foods fresh, juicy and at their flavory best.

No other method of refrigeration can do this—so why buy an expensive substitute for ice that fails in this vital essential?

*THE THERMOMETER TEST: Your ice company will test your ice box with an accurate thermometer—will make minor adjustments and repairs without charge.

Or will sell you one of the handsome and efficient new ice boxes at half old time price and on easy terms.

Given Contracts for Long Period

Richard A. Glendon can remain as crew coach at the United States Naval academy as long as he desires, and his son, Richard J. Glendon, has signed a new contract for three more years at Columbia, with a younger brother, Hubert, as his assistant.

Glendon, Sr., first became coach at Annapolis in 1903. His son became his assistant in 1919 and succeeded his dad in 1923. He was head coach until 1925 when he quit and went to Columbia. The elder Glendon then became his son's assistant at Columbia, but was coaxed back by Navy.

None of the Glendon's ever attended college.

TENNIS IS SPORT, SAYS HELEN WILLS

Always to Be of Secondary Importance to Her.

Tennis has made Helen Wills one of the most famous women in the world today, but tennis, she said always has been and always will continue to be a matter of only secondary importance in her life.

"I don't know how my life looks to other people," she said, "but I've never let tennis be the thing that mattered most. You can't do that. Tennis is lots of fun—but it's only a sport."

If you don't think Helen Wills meant that, read what happened to her in New York and her reaction to it.

When she came in on the Aquitania, winner for the third successive year of the Wimbledon championship, thirty news cameramen and a big crowd of reporters boarded the ship at quarantine to take pictures of her and interview her.

After the ship docked, one of the ship reporters hurried to a telephone and, in his story, quoted Miss Wills as having said she doubted if she ever would play tennis in Europe again. The story went out, and during the afternoon reporters began to flock into her hotel to find out why.

"Somebody must have misunderstood me," she said amiably, when she had found out what the excitement was all about.

"After all, that would be natural enough; there were lots of people around and quite a bit of confusion

Helen Wills.

What I meant to convey was that I didn't know whether I'd go back next year or not—that I'd made no plans.

"As a matter of fact, I've never made plans very far ahead about going to Europe to play tennis. I'd love to go over and play again next year, but I'm not able to say right now whether I can or not.

"After all (consolingly) don't take all this so seriously. It's only tennis."

Helen Wills loves tennis—as a sideline, but as for the fame it has brought her—

"Oh, that isn't fame," she said hastily. "Not real fame. If I could ever make any important scientific discovery, or become a great artist, or—something like that—well than I might be famous, but tennis.

"Tennis is just a sport—something that's fun. For awhile, since I've been playing tournament tennis, I was going to college, and I made that count more—really mean more to me as a person—than tennis. My drawing means more than tennis to me, too.

"You see, I've got my life ahead of me, and I can't let tennis be the only thing in it—nor the most important thing."

"Perhaps," one reporter suggested, "You may not go to Europe next year because you'll be married by then."

But all that got was a laugh.

Record All His Own

The greatest home run hitter in the major leagues naturally belongs to Babe Ruth of the Yankees. His record probably will stand for years to come and may never be equaled. Four times he has hit over 50 home runs in one season, few ever coming with the bases full.

Since his entry into the American league, excluding the present season, he has hit home runs in every park he has played in. Following is the number of home runs hit against pitchers of the different teams:

Detroit, 85; Chicago, 67; St. Louis, 67; Philadelphia, 66; Boston, 59; Cleveland, 58; Washington, 56; New York, 12 (when playing with Boston). He also has hit 13 circuit drives in world series he participated.

Cubs and Athletics Are Old Baseball Enemies

If the Athletics of Philadelphia and Cubs of Chicago make good their threats to win the American and National league championships, baseball history will repeat itself after many years. The Athletics and Cubs met in the world series of 1910, the American leaguers, then as now managed by Connie Mack, winning four games to one. The Cubs were commanded by the late Frank Chance.

Only Eddie Collins of the present day Athletic roster was with the White Elephants in 1910, and since that time he has been west with Chicago and returned to his first baseball love. Of the stars under Chance's wing, only one, Johnny Evers, remains in baseball. Connie then had Chief Bender,

John Evers.

Jack Coombs and Eddie Plank as his pitching aces, although Plank did not appear in the series. Coombs won three games. The Cubs had some great pitchers, too, including Mordecai Brown, Orvoll Overall and Ed Reulbach.

The Athletics and Cubs have some able moundsmen. If he so wishes, Manager Mack can so juggle Grove, Walberg and Earnshaw that they can start all the games between them. Manager Joe McCarthy can counter with Bush, Root and Malone, if he feels so inclined, and has the opportunity.

Sculling Champion

Berthus Gunther of Holland, who gained fame by defeating Joe Wright, Jr., of the Argonaut R. C., Toronto, in the recent English Royal Henley regatta, gaining possession of the diamond sculls, is 28 years of age and is a member of the Amstel R. C. of Amsterdam. Gunther was for four years a member of the club's eight-oared crew before taking up sculling.

Mistake Jim Burke

Like the important looking supernumeraries preceding the star upon the stage, Jimmy Burke, Chicago Cubs coach, frequently is mistaken for Manager McCarthy.

Burke, who has had managerial experience, usually is first at his coaching post on the first base line and frequently draws many of the opening taunts intended for the Bruins' boss. None of this disturbs the dignified Jimmy, who carries himself like an aristocrat.

Coincidence

New York.—Several months ago an acquaintance completed writing of my acquaintance completed a novel, which has been appearing as a serial in a magazine but is not yet out in book form, in which the hero is the inventor of a machine which enables motorists to serve themselves with gasoline by dropping quarters in a slot. A few weeks ago it was announced that a California inventor had gathered such an apparatus.

City Museum

New York, which already may lay claim to being the city of museums, will have a museum of its own next year, wherein will be displayed the famous waxworks. Unlike the waxworks of Coney Island, which pictures only circus events as the murder of Herman Rothstein, this museum will depict the more serious and important events in the history of the municipality. The first scene will show Henry Hudson on the deck of the Half Moon, approaching the island of Manhattan on his search for a route to the Indies. Other scenes will show Peter Minuit making his famous $24 deal with the Indians, and Washington's inauguration at Federal hall. Also pictured will be a draft riot in Union Square during the Civil war, and the waterfront in the days of clipper ships. No plans have been laid for picturing more modern events, but I, for one, vote for the inclusion of a scene depicting the returning of Lindbergh from Paris. There was something that for sheer magnificence may never be duplicated.

Floating Hotel

Several years ago an imaginative reporter got himself and his newspaper into all sorts of trouble with a highly colored story about a floating palace on Rum Row, where the elite of the fast set were enjoying gambling and drinking orgies. The vessel was pure imagination on the reporter's part, and every one agreed, a very superior grade of imagination. But now the real thing has appeared off the coast of Long Island. It is a luxurious boat, operated as a hotel where stage and society folk spend their week-ends. It is no gambling hell or floating liquor dispensary, and it operates within the law.

Foolish Squirrels

Columbia university, where men and women are equipped in a superior fashion for their battle with life, has proved the undoing of a community of squirrels. These animals have been broken down mentally to such an extent that they have forgotten the inborn squirrel instinct to bury nuts in summer so that they may eat in winter. The students are at fault. Apparently all of the thousands that attend the university in the winter session have been willing to provide nuts for the campus squirrels, and the squirrels have developed a devil-may-care philosophy. And the strange part of it is that early summer is the leanest period of the year for these improvidents, for the winter students have departed and the summer session attendants have not yet arrived.

Claims Plane Shakes Dishes Off Her Shelf

Syracuse, N. Y.—That a low-flying airplane keeps her awake and "shakes dishes off the shelves" in the wee hours of the morning was the complaint made to the police here recently by one housewife.

"It flies so low it wakes us all up and the vibration from the engine shakes dishes off my shelves," said the woman, adding that she wanted "something done about it." The sergeant promised to do his best, though as yet there are no "air cops" on the force.

It Won't Be Long Now

Caligula's Galleys Disappoint

Rome. — Caligula's galley, about which so much has been written in Italy and elsewhere, is proving a disappointment to the Italians, and a source of worry to the peasants of Nemi, whose medieval city overlooks the lake in which the galley was sunk.

Now that several million gallons have been drained from what was till recently the most beautiful lake near Rome, the hulk has appeared in all its dilapidation. Its worn beams, entirely bare of those ornaments of marble, copper and mosaic that were described with such glowing color, have been kept together only by the mud of the bottom of the lake. Now that they have been exposed to the sun, they are in danger of crumbling away altogether, and the two firms that have undertaken its salvage at their own expense hastily had it boarded up, while continuing pumping operations, though on a reduced scale, as the rapid pumping of the last six months not only caused landslips, but may throw the beams of the hulk apart altogether.

Hope to Reconstruct Galley.

Archeologists and antiquarians are not so disappointed as the general public, nor do they share the anger of the Nemi peasants, whose famous strawberry beds, which used to reach to the water's edge, are damaged by the withdrawal of moisture and the frequent landslides.

They point out that once the water is drained from the galley's keel, and the cooler weather makes it possible to remove the boarding, it will be simple enough to remove the hulk beam by beam and "reconstruct" it on the shores of the lake, where a small museum is to be built for its reception.

Whether the operation will solve the riddle of how galleys of ancient Rome were propelled remains to be seen. Former attempts to save this one did more harm than good. Large quantities of wood taken from it were sold for fuel, and the better parts made into "keepsakes," such as snuff boxes and walking sticks.

Emperor Is Playful.

As to the precious marbles and bronzes with which the barges were covered, local rumor has it that the Emperor Caligula, being in a playful mood, sunk the boats on purpose, with his friends on board to see what they would do when in danger of drowning, but carefully had everything of value removed. The discovery of a large wolf's head in copper, a few tiles and some long copper nails does not entirely refute this legend, for the heads were used as figureheads, and the tiles may have covered a cabin. One head, evidently the twin of that found near the hulk recently, has been in Terme museum in Rome for some years. The copper nails were purely ornamental, as experts who examined the hulk found the beams were kept together by dove-tailing one into the other.

Now that the barge near the shore has proved disappointing, archeologists' hopes are centered on the one further out which, they say, will be in better condition, as neither peasants nor relic hunters could get at it so easily. But the two firms who are undertaking their salvage for purely patriotic reasons have already spent over 1,500,000 liras ($75,000) against an estimated 200,000 liras ($10,000). And it is not certain that they will be able to attack the second vessel, which would prove even more costly. The estimate was that both would be laid bare by next October.

Muskrat, Once Thought Nuisance, Now Valued

In the early days of the fur trade it was the practice in Canada for trappers to keep foxes or other wild fur bearers, caught in warm weather, until the fur was prime, and from this custom has arisen the modern industry of fur farming.

In recent years the development of muskrat farms has progressed rapidly, particularly in western Canada. Marsh lands hitherto considered almost worthless have suddenly increased in value.

At one time the muskrat was looked upon as a pest and was disregarded by the trapper unless a great number could be taken with little trouble. Today this little slough dweller is one of the chief factors in maintaining a high total value for our annual fur production and in commercial importance heads the list of fur-bearers taken in Canada. This growth in popularity is due to two valuable properties—namely, the pelt's long-wearing qualities and its suitability for dyeing.—Exchange.

Judge Confesses Being "Asleep at the Switch"

Judge Henry G. Hawthorne of Winooski, Vt., enjoys telling at his own expense the tale of how he entertained, unawares, the famous camping party of Edison, Burroughs, Ford and Firestone. The party's chauffeur stopped at Judge Hawthorne's home and asked if they might camp at a particularly delightful spot on the Hawthorne place. He mentioned the names of the men in the party and said they would appreciate a visit from the judge during the evening.

To the judge, however, who had paid scant attention as the famous names were enumerated, it was "only another bunch of automobile campers." He told the chauffeur to tell them to go ahead and asked if they would please be careful not to destroy his bean patch or leave any refuse about.

Next morning he read, with some chagrin, who his distinguished guests were. He says it won't happen again. —Los Angeles Times.

Cat Too Much for Eagle

Aroused from peaceful slumber to find herself aloft in the talons of an eagle, a common house cat put up such a fight in midair at Rock Springs, Utah, that the eagle was forced to relinquish its hold. The cat, dropping to the ground, was uninjured except for numerous wounds inflicted by the talons. The cat was enjoying a snooze on the roof of a farmhouse when her sudden aerial trip began. The eagle swooped down, scooped up the animal, and headed toward its nest. Getting into action with her claws raking the eagle's breast, the cat made her escape.

Many Telephones

The telephone is rapidly catching up on the population of the country and in the five-year period from 1922 to 1927 increased four times as rapidly as the population. In the latter year there were 18,522,767 telephones in use and the total calls sounds like a national debt, with the figures set at 31,614,173,621. The District of Columbia, with 144,985 phones, outranked 19 states.

Army Studies Airplane Equipment for Camping

Washington. — Airplane camping equipment to provide for field expeditions by air is being devised by the army air corps. Secretary of War Good has directed Maj. Gen. James E. British Aristocrat a Genius

London.—Any schoolboy fresh from his first chemistry lesson, will tell you that water is H2O—a statement. By the way, with which modern scientists do not altogether agree. Not everybody, however, can say who first made that stupendous fact known to the world.

It was a millionaire bachelor. Henry Cavendish by name, nephew of one of the dukes of Devonshire. He was so shy that he kept many of his discoveries secret lest he should become famous, but they were only unearthed after his death; so shy that if he ever caught sight of one of his own woman servants, she had to pack her bag and leave that day. He was so shy that when his banker came to tell him he had $400,000 in his account—and wasn't that rather a lot to lie idle?—he sent the man of business away, told him to do what he liked with it, but said he would close his account if they ever bothered him again.

He was so shy, says the London Mail, that having a wonderful library of books he was quite willing to lend; he took a separate house in Soho, so that borrowers need never disturb his studies. Whenever he took out a book himself he always signed for it like any stranger.

Not only did he tell how water is made. He was one of the first to discover that heat is not a substance but a state; one of the first to measure the density of the earth; a pioneer of electricity, an astronomer, a geologist. Rustics at Clapham, where he had his country seat, peeped through his windows and saw, instead of furniture, a laboratory and a forge. They thought he was either a wizard or a madman; but he was merely a genius.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

The Humming Bird

The humming bird derives its name from the sound of its swiftly moving wings. It remains in the air all day, never tiring and even sips honey from the flowers as it floats about them. This bird, like the bee, is valuable in that it carries pollen from one plant to an other. There are about five hundred species.

ESCAPING FROM ONESELF

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It was Joseph Conrad in his introduction to his "Tales of Unrest" who said, "We cannot escape from ourselves."

He was relating his experiences in writing a series of short stories. Having written one he outlined another upon what he thought was an entirely different plan, with new phrasings, new points of view, a different method of attack. "It was only later," he confesses, "that I perceived that in common with the rest of men nothing could deliver me from my fatal consistency. We cannot escape from ourselves."

Every day I see the truth of the statement in my own actions and in the reactions of those with whom I come into contact. We deceive ourselves that a new environment, a different job, a milder climate will inspire us with greater enthusiasm, will give us a keener desire for work, or help us to go at unpleasant tasks with increased eagerness. These things seldom have the effect we anticipate, for, in truth, it is not the climate, nor the job, nor the environment that is wrong, but ourselves and we cannot escape from ourselves.

Gentry tells me that he is going to Wisconsin next year. His work at Illinois has been something of a failure. He doesn't like our weather, which, truth compels one to admit, is variable. Living conditions do not please him, his associates bore him, and his instructors are dull and altogether commonplace. The facts are that Gentry is lazy, he has been spoiled at home, and so has grown selfish and self-centered. He will be disappointed wherever he goes, for he is not going to be able to get away from himself even in Wisconsin.

Dorner as a boy had always seemed to me a very disagreeable person critical, pessimistic, caviling at the slightest opportunity for adverse criticism. Even when he was sitting off in a corner alone, he never seemed to me to be enjoying himself. His own company, even, was disagreeable to him. I had not seen him for some time until a few months ago when he seemed like a new creature, and I had the temerity to say so to him.

"I waked up to the fact one day," he explained to me, "that I was an impossible person to live with—ill-tempered, critical, ill-mannered, selfish. The fact at first did not make such a strong impression on me as it did later when I realized that always, whatever I did, wherever I went, early or late, night or day, I should have to live with myself. There was no escaping it, I could get away from my family, I could snub the neighbors, I could ignore the people I met on the street, but my own personality followed me like a shadow inescapably a part of me. The thought frightened me. I decided to make myself the sort of person with whom it would be pleasant if not profitable to live."

That is the way to enjoy oneself.

Sun and Tape 'Brand' Bathers in Virginia

Richmond, Va.—The vogue for suntan here has brought the "brand." A "brand" is easily acquired with a few strips of adhesive tape and an afternoon at the swimming pool.

It consists of shaping the desired design or initials from the tape, applying them to the skin and stepping into the sunshine. The space covered by the tape remains white and is easily seen when the tape is removed. Greek letter fraternity "brands" appear to be the most popular.
